Mr. DELANO, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following REPORT.

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Samuel Remick for a pension, report:

That whoever is to be regarded as the applicant for relief in this case, whether Samuel Remick, or his widow, Sarah Remick, in either case, we think there is no occasion for the interference of Congress. As an application on behalf of Samuel Remick, we think there is no case proved for an increase of pension. As an application of Sarah Remick, the same is not entertained; inasmuch as her husband having died in receipt of a pension, she is clearly entitled to a pension or annuity for life from the Pension office; and, upon an application there for the proper allowance, we doubt not that it will be given.

The committee therefore ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the case.
